Well, I installed it a few days ao and have been playing...

Finding it works on my Galaxy S IP90000 very well.

Only bugging problem so far is how to set preferences on the "aprs.fi" display.

Hello to the group,
I just got my Atrix a couple of days ago and today joined the "group", I downloaded the file from the internet but the security on the phone says unrecognized source and won't open the file. Can someone give me some help as to how to get the file to open and install?
Thanks in advance, Mike KE4DZU

Hi Robin, Thanks for the timely reply. I don't have any "allow" settings for applications, my Android is the new ATRIX unit, the file I downloaded :U2APRS061g.apk but haven't gotten past Android security when I attempt to open the file.I'm going to browse a/o join the "Droidhams" group for info as well.If you have any additional thoughts please let me know. Another possibility of contacting Oba, he has a repeater on echolink which is in conf with JH7GLC. I will try a call through when I can but your time zone will have more of a chance than mine:)

Hi Robin,

I've just updated my 61 to 64, too. Only played with it for half an hour or so, but it seems to work fine.

Now if only there was a way to type in [spaces] in outgoing messages ;-)

Of course, there may well be, but none that I've found on my 2.2 tablet.

Robin thank you for helping me with this issue but after down loading and emailing to my phone and then opening the file, I keep getting " Parse error" There is a problem parsing the package. Has this happened to anyone else and if so what was the solution?

Thanks again,
Jay

Those of you are having problems with getting this version to install, this is what worked for me.

When you've downloaded the file to your computer (if that's the way you are doing it), you need to change the file extension from .zip to .apk

It should then install without problem.

Hi Martin,

What did you use to copy it?

If it was HTTrack, then you should be able to open the contents of the files folder you have and compare with the files folder on here.
Then it's just a matter of uploading any newer program version.

Hi Gareth thanks for reply. I don't know what HTT's are, all I did was to copy and paste using Windows 7 and I then printed the lot for my reference.
Not sure if the version 6.4 shown would download to Andriod from this copy but the web page may be usefull to those that have downloded the program to use as set up.
Do you use Echolink if so we could discuss this?

If it were not for this Yahoo Group I wouldn't have the program on my phone anymore! Had an issue like we all sometimes get with these so called "Smart Phones" where a complete system reboot and reinstall was necessary as a result of that it wipes clean all your app's and you start over with factory default settings. So when I went to reinstall the U2APRS App I saw this:

ERROR- Not found - file doesn't exist or is read protected

Not on the Market, not on line anywhere but here right now?

Olá amigo da lista!

Meu nome é Airam (PU8ASR) estou precisando de uma ajuda para entender uma parte da fórmula que calcula uma antena dipolo de meia onda.

Tendo como base as siglas:

VL=Velocidade da luz, F=Frequência(7.075 por exemplo ☐ 40 metros),
Cons=Contante(142.5)

Conheço as seguintes fórmulas:

Fórmula 1: {(VL/F)/4} ☐ 5%

Fórmula 2: {(Cons/F)/2}

Então, até aqui tudo bem... Independente da fórmula utilizada, chegaremos ao mesmo resultado.

Minha dúvida consiste em saber como se chegou a esse valor na constante(142.5).

Muitos colegas me ensinaram esta fórmula, sendo que uns ensiram a primeira e outros a segunda, mas nenhum soube de dizer com clareza como se chegou a este valor na constante. Não me conformo em simplesmente fazer(rs...) euquero saber e entender tudo, ok?!

Você pode me ajudar a esclarecer esta dúvida?

Atenciosamente,

Hi Martin,

With mine whenever I'm on the message composer screen and select the message box, to type a message into, the on-screen keyboard that comes up is the one with the [www.*.com] short-cut option replacing the [Space-Bar] and there doesn't seem to be any way of typing in a space between words.

It's more of a niggle than a problem. I seldom send messages from it and the voice input option works very well when I do.

Probably a feature with Android 2.2

No. Apart from when using a web-browser, which it’s supposed to do.
It doesn’t even appear with other APRS apps and I’ve tried alternate keyboards – ‘Go’ and ‘Gingerbread’ – with exactly the same results.

Thanks for the suggestions. Tried both. Sadly neither worked.
If it starts to bug me, I'll root the thing and sort it from Linux..... Or with a hammer.

Hi all,
Did a 40 mile round trip to Birmingham and back today and tracking using u2aprs. I noticed that the satelite counter (bottom right) stayed at zero throughout the trip and yet there was a perfect track (average 32 sec beacon) displayed on aprs.fi. On previous trips Ive noticed between 6 to 10 sats displayed with the odd zero now and then. So how did it work well today any ideas? Version 5.8 used

Merry Christmas to all

Yep.We keep most of them down in the southern hemisphere.

I used -7 today. Was only a short trip around town.

I think if you open your browser on your phone and browse to the file in the files section you should be able to download and install it from there.

You don't need to uninstall the previous version.

Good luck.

Also I have not been able to connect to JA7UDE's website at all, and the other one listed in the group has a much older version of the software than what is in the files section. Any idea how one would get the version 0.7.8 that he is running :)

Hey guys,

Right now I have mine set to becon every 600 seconds, or 500 meters, but for some reason it is not beconing on distance when moving, just time. Any ideas of what setting might need to be tweaked to get it to update on distance like it should?

Hi Greg,

What are you taking positional information from. GPS or phone masts?

If the former, the phone may not have found enough sat's at the start of your journey. If the latter, you may not be moving through enough cells during your journey.

Gareth,

I am using GPS, and it says I have 7 down in the corner of the screen. I know not to use the cell towers as where I was going the closest tower it 10 miles away! I have no cell phone signal for about 2 miles of my route so I am not expecting it to find anything there, but I figure where I have a signal it should transmit it ok.

Hi Greg,

Interesting. I usually use time rather than distance. When I've tried distance I don't think I've ever reduced it from the default setting of 1000 metres though I can see no reason why it shouldn't work at shorter distances.

I'll try my tablet on your setting of 500 metres for a couple of days and get back to you.

Gareth.

Hi guys, I have the same problem, and have noticed GPS or cellular, no difference. Every 10 minutes regardless of distance traveled.

However, if I set the unit to beacon whenever I turn more than 45 degrees from my present heading, it works great.

Phone is a HTC Inspire.

Hi all,
I have been running u2aprs 6.5 on my HTC Wildfire phone for a few months now with no problems until today.
It would not find my position even when I left it running outside for 30 mins but it connected Ok.
So I removed it and re installed 6.5. Now it will not even connect to the aprs server!!. I have entered my four figure verification code but I notice that on the default page it says it requires five figures? should I leave the number 1 and add my four to it. Cant remember what I did last time

Any ideas?

Hi Martin

Your passcode has only four digits.

Try to connect to france.aprs2.net and I can probably tell you what the problem is. You can also lookup the server's connect log at:

Gerhard thanks for speedy reply. I looked again at the website defaults and with you mentioning the "france.aprs2.net" idea I checked mine. My downloaded program server was "rotation.aprs2.net" the web default was shown as "lax.aprs2.net" and when I entered this all is now Ok, thanks for the pointer.

I am currently watching on my Buddy list (V6.5) a young Polish man who works here in the UK as a Heavy Goods Driver (Trucker). He is now on his holliday back packing around the world and is now in VK land beaconing his call SP3SUX when he can.

Each morning here in the UK I set up my u2aprs and when I see him beaconing I send my greatings (through the voice messaging facility)then if convenient to both Irek SP3SUX connects to my local repeater here in Coventry GB3CV and we have a chat.

I was wondering that those in this group might be interested in including themselves on a world wide buddy list (not just your local pals), registering their calls on data base here on u2aprs yahoo group, put me in as G4ZXN-10. Perhaps the list could be arranged by the moderators.

Anyway its just a thought and another good use of this excellent tracking program and also echolink.

Cheers Eric,

There are 170 members so far in this group and am sure some of the group at any one time must be doing something interesting, like expeditions,(including radio ones), back packing, hollidays/vacations, cruises, unusual hobbies, balloning etc etc that we could all follow, just post it on here.

Myself, being retired dont do anything more interesting than caravaning in the UK. I do sometimes help my Son on his steam canal boat "Hasty" (www.tunneltug.org.uk} but alas no streat view :(and its very slow going.

Come on Robin zl3rew make it happen :)

Thanks for doing that Robin, you never know it might take off.

Just to say that Irek SP3SUX will be visiting ZL on this trip and It would be nice if you could give him a buzz if you see him tracking. I dont know him personally but he passes by Coventry when trucking and I recommended u2aprs to him, next is to get him to register with this group.

He is posting his travels on Twitter under his call but I'm not on Twitter as yet.

Hope your well Robin

Hi Martin,

My APRS IGATE (using javAPRSsrvr under Slackware Linux on 144,800 KHZ) is SV1UY-10

My Car (using a TMD-700E on 144,800 KHZ) is SV1UY-9

My HT when I am walking portable (using a VX-8E on 144,800 KHZ) is SV1UY-7

My Laptop (using APRSIS32 or AGWTRACKER over 3G) is SV1UY-6

My GTAB (using u2aprs over 3G) is SV1UY-6

My DESKTOP at home (using HF APRS 14,101.30 KHZ Center Frequency with UIVIEW-32) is SV1UY-14

Yes the number after the callsign is called SSID.

I was wondering if anyone else has run across this issue? U2APRS does not seem to run in the background very long before be killed. I have over 100mb of free system RAM and I'm using no task killers. A similar application (APRSdroid) will run as a service and even restart itself if killed. I like U2APRS much better!
But I wish it would run persistently.

Hi Jeff, I do the same thing when I ride my bike here in AZ, but I just want to start U2APRS whenever I leave the house. Some have suggested that it wouldn't be wise to allow the app to start in Auto Beacon mode, just to ensure users don't accidentally beacon. In other words, requiring a button-push to start auto-beaconing is probably a decision the developer made. APRSDroid works the same way in that regard, you have to intentionally initiate beaconing. May be no way to automate it.

I understand the developer is in Japan, not far from where the earthquake struck last year. I don't know how to contact him to get his thoughts on adding this as a setup option.

Thanks for the post.

I just noticed tonight that I have been running the program but nothing is showing on the aprs map. If you look for KB3AWQ-10 it says May 1st 2012 was the last time it was used but I use it everyday.

I have not changed any settings that I know of. I also tried APRSDroid since I have both of them on the phone and that is not posting my info either. Im using my Droid Razr for these. I have my old Droid 1 setup that beacons using KB3AWQ-15 and that seems to work just fine with the same settings. When I open the program it says is connected to the server (lga.aprs2.net) and I have the 145.80 port and is set to tcp when I put it on auto the red line following may drive is there but when I go to the map it still says last heard 35 days ago (May 1st)

Any ideas?
Thanks.

Hi John,

I've looked on .FI and you seem to be time-updating ok, just nothing on the map - which suggests no change of position information is being received.

Have you checked your GPS is working?

It seems to be. Everything on the app (both apps for that matter) seems to be showing and acting as if it works including connecting. I just happened to look on the map and it said May 1st was the last time. When I open the app I click auto and then go on my travel. It shows my position and trail on the map like it always has but shows me still at home on May 1st. I just tried it from here at work and it shows me here but still shows May 1st on aprs.fi

The site above has up to version 0.6.5g.

What link did you try?

What version do you have?

Of course not.

I don't even want to suggest that I can provide his APRS passcode, which,
by the way, is the correct terminology.

Hi Martin,

One way to generate an APRS verification key is by using the software Xastir. Documentation exists to aid the process on the website.

OK, I downloaded the program and loaded it into my Samsung 5 Player (it is not a phone but has Wi-Fi access to internet). Program seems to run just fine. I did add my callsign and added my passcode (same as was issued for Ui-View and is used on APRSIS32). I have sent and received messages but I am not receiving any other APRS stations on my screen in Main Mode. Receiving stations OK in aprs.fi mode.

I just had a message pop up on the screen: Sorry The application U2APRS(process com.ja7ude.aprs.u2aprs) has stopped unexpectedly. Try again. When I press Auto Close this message just keeps coming back. Any ideas?

Obviously I don't have some setting set properly. Any help would be appreciated. Also is there anywhere I can download a manual for this program. Program looks impressive but I am suffering from growing pains. Been a WinAPRS user since that program was released back in the 90's.

I'm not a programmer but a think a service runs in the background without user intervention and can keep itself alive. In the past U2APRS would run fine for me as long as I kept it in the foreground, but if I started other apps such as a podcast player or Waze, U2APRS would shut down. The latest version of U2APRS seems to be running fine now as a service.

Do we have to download the "APTOIDE" thingy before we download V8.1 and do we have to delete our version 6.5 first?

actually, the answer is no to both. i downloaded the 8.1 apk and installed it without uninstalling 6.5 first and it works fine. uninstalling an app to update it should never be necessary on android unless the developer of the app does something very wrong.

Well I guess it could go both ways, myself and another Ham had to uninstall the old version and had to load the APTOIDE, before it would install the new version 8.1. I would not mislead anyone without knowing, the process it took for me.
But you can go to the files section here and download now which is the easier way.

And I would bet you are using Andorid 4.1 on your phones. There seems to have been a change that prevents a program from updating if the signatures are different. I also had to uninstall the old before being able to install the new.

Yep, had to do the same, install Aptoide and install the App from it.
My Android HTC Wildfire is V2.1.
Thankfully now tracking again with V8.1
Did make a comment on Aptoide requesting a description/settings etc for the u2aprs V8.1.

Cheers all

Don't know how long it's been there, but since it's not updated on the front page, and I didn't see it in a cursory perusal of the messages, here's the URL I found.

http://www.qsl.net/j/ja7ude//u2aprs_android/u2aprs/indexe.html

There's also V2APRS, which looks like it's an interface into the audio port of a radio - not using the phone's data, but the HAM APRS network. Again, too excited to look at it in any depth yet. Figured I'd share this info before I slept...

I'm going to upload the latest U2APRS into the files section. Last I see there is 'L'. He's up to 'O' now.

You should be able to get it from the writer of the software.
Alternatively, the code from any other APRS software will work or there are apparently several utilities available on the web to do it. It's not a "secret" code but an open standard.

Okay. I've put a Passcode Generator program into the files area. APRS-IS

It's not exactly the same as the online program, but close enough.

Just download, unzip to a folder and then run.

Hi,

I have a couple of questions about this app - but I have a problem also. When I try and access yahoo - both any yahoo groups and email website - I cannot even log onto yahooxtra email server anymore - I get a "Suspicious activity is detected. Your account is locked" message and cannot access any yahoo pages. I am asked to fill in a whole bunch of info and it looks dead certain a hoax - they want names, addresses, phone numbers AND visa card details - wtf! Excuse me - but I am not about to enter my visa card details into a supicious looking form. WOULD yahoo ever ask such a thing? yahoo don't have and have never had any visa card details of mine - The form says it is to verify that I am ME - and not some robot. I have never had this occur in all my internet days - and I have been there from the year dot. Sooo .... could perhaps an administrator of this group, as it was directly after joining this group this happened - there may or may not be a connection .... but it happened within minutes - please contact yahoo administration and ask them to contact me - via email so I can respond via computer based email - and not a link to a yahoo based resource - . All the yahoo admin hits I was able to find on google were yahoo web based - which I can't access.

Is it possible my computer has been hacked - a trojan? Tho wondering how this would block my access to yahoo and place the form on my computer? But there are some very computer savvy weirdos out there!

Ok,

Fingers crossed. I have successfully added the app to my android - but it looks like I need verification, looking at the list of red data from the server. I AM rx data and have friends beacons showing up - but my beacons are not being accepted. I 'think" I spotted something in the message lists I could read for the first few minutes of looking on the group page - but access quickly was blocked so I did not get to read what the info said about verification keys etc :-)

I do beacon from my bus and from my 4x4 when on the road and this is via rf to igate. Hoping to use this app when I am pedestrian mobile :-)

Graham ZL3TV

Not sure what is happening with your yahoo account.
Are you using a secure connection to your xtra/yahoo account as they changed the rules last month i think.

Hi robin,

Great to hear from you - hope we are not overloading your igate with all the testing ;-) So yes, mostly working now - just have to get the setup - well setup a tad better.

With my email, yes I am using the secure connection that was part of a security requirement upgrade - so not the problem there. The screen that I get when I try and access ANY yahoo site says that my account has been blocked as it was sending out spam. Perhaps from the webserver maybe - but I can't check my sent folders on the yahoo email site - so tomorrow I will ring xtra and see what they can tell me. There is no spam in my outbox on my computer here and an intensive malwares scan and virus scan came up blank - so am thinking it is server related. The page that I get just looks SO suspicious - like a true blue authentic scam/hoax. *B*eing asked to enter my visa details plus expiry date, name, address and phone numbers - well I cant see yahoo asking for those. I thought they would email me with a phone number to call them back on - if it was genuine? Oh well - will see what eventuates tomorrow. First time in all my internet history I have struck this - I was using local bbs's for email before the www really got underway :-)

Will let you know the outcome - for reference etc.

Thanks!

Just a quick note to say thanks to the replies I have had about u2aprs. It is up and working now. Tomorrow, Wednesday, I will be in Christchurch for the day - and much better cell coverage, so am going to fit some time in for looking at my settings etc.

Re the not being able to access yahoo - after some lengthy remote testing of my computer by my email provider and comparing with their login attempts from their machines - I have had a backdoor trojan infection - and none of my current virus programs will remove it. I tried using restore points for a number of times, but none were successful (all windows automated points - none manual) - "the restore has failed". If anyone has a suggestion I will look at it. Been a long time since I installed windows and probably much too many programs on my computer, but a re-install might fix the issue - any ideas? My service provider said best to take my computer to the computer doctor - but hey - I'm a Ham - you know - a do-it yourself type. I'll probably need to read the manual again as it has been quite some time now that I cleaned up messy computers - you know - like back up data, copy/save install files or programs etc etc ... Why is it that computers were less work when they were less complicated? Give me an old 486 and Win 95/98 any day and I'll be happy - until I want to use modern software, that is ....

Thanks all and,

I was just going to update to the latest version and when I click the link to update, my Droid Maxx starts opening tabs, once it gets to 100 tabs it changes to some other icon and still keeps opening tabs. Has anyone had this happen. It seems to be something with downloading apps from a website as my YouMail app does the same thing if I try to update the app from their website.

Hello, thank you for adding me to the group. I just found and began using U2APRS because it includes igate functionality which APRSdroid lacks.

This program running on a cheap android phone and a cable from BTECH plugged into a Chinese radio makes for a super inexpensive igate.

Is this program still in active development?

Does the APRS server filter effect what gets sent through the igate?

Hi Lloyd,

Welcome to the group.

Not a great amount of traffic on here.

Not sure if the program is in active development. Sometimes there are updates.

The server filter has no bearing on what is sent to the internet through the igate.

What cable are you using to connect the radio to your phone.

Cheers,

Robin.

Hi Robin,

The cable is "APRS-K2 TRRS CABLE" which you can search for and find at Amazon or Btech. It has been working really well for me in a temporary Igate setup that I hope to deploy in multiple locations soon. I am using the cable to connect an old LG G2 phone and a BaoFeng UV82 for my igate.

I wish U2aprs would also digipeate so as to make use of old android phones instead of Raspberry Pi's for those.

I see the developer actively developing other programs maybe he would consider adding capabilities someday.

Lloyd

first of all, thanks for allowing to me to enter in this group.
I wonder if U2APRS development is ongoing, to be able to download last version (it appears to be a little bit old).
If not, do you knwo of some free alternative? (I don't want to pay for APRSDroid without checking if APRS with my android device is a good option).
Tanks in advance and best regards.

Good question, I haven't seen any information regarding 'updates' but in my opinion 0.8.3a is a pretty stable and useful version without too much extra 'fluff' that may be found in other paid APRS programs. --kd7ltn

Looks like Obe has let U2APRS go, but he's actively working on W2APRS. It's an Android client which displays RF APRS data on Google Maps. (~AVMAP?) I don't see that it has iAPRS connectivity

Obe's qsl.net home:

He says it has been tested with these radios:
Kenwood TM-D710 Kenwood TH-D72 Yaesu FTM-400D Yaesu FT-1D IC-2828DG (DPRS) ID-92 (DPRS) Kenwood TH-D74 (Bluetooth only, USB is not supported yet) i may have to try it on my TH-D7a(g).

Folks,

Obe has pulled U2APRS and V2APRS from the public until he will have more time to address upgrades and maintenance.

With his present business schedule, he anticipates that he will resume development and support when he retires from his business next year.

In the meantime, they are as they are and they are pretty good compared to other available aprs apps.
